

Melita Mokos, Ms. Marine biology and ecology

Department of Ecology, Agronomy and Aquaculture, University of Zadar

Education

2010 – Ph. D. student, Applied marine science, University of Split, Croatia

2001 – 2007 Master Degree in Marine biology and ecology, University of Split, Croatia

1998 – 2003 Preschool teacher, University of Zadar

Employment

2014 – Department of Ecology, Agronomy and Aquaculture, University of Zadar

2009 – 2014: Maritime Department, University of Zadar

2007-2009: Nature Park Telašćica, Natural History Department of National Museum Zadar

Scientific interest

Seagrass, climate change, macroalgae, microplastics and marine litter, ocean literacy, environmental education, science outreach

Research and Teaching

Scientific Projects:

2015-2016: collaborator, project INOVaDA – Research, quality and promotion of mussels from Novigrad sea, Croatia; European social fund (ESF)

2009-2013: Monitoring and ecology of benthic communities of the Croatian Adriatic; Ministry of Science and Education (MZOS)

Teaching:

Marine Environmental Protection, Pollution of aquatic systems

Additional:

Ocean literacy education of school and preschool children

Coordinator of EMSEA-Med, European Marine Science Educators Association - Mediterranean

Publications:

Bib.irb: <https://bib.irb.hr/lista-radova?autor=314611>

ResearchGate: https://www.researchgate.net/profile/Melita_Mokos/publications

GoogleScholar: <http://scholar.google.hr/citations?user=2Q0rdicAAAAJ&hl=hr&oi=ao>